CONSIDERING

That telecommunications and information and communication technologies (ICTs) are key tools to promote social, economic, cultural and environmental development and thereby for the achievement of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development,

That CITELE is the OAS institution specialized in telecommunications and ICTs and as such effectively contributes to the implementation of the four OAS pillars and the mandates and initiatives of the Summits of the Americas for which end it has encouraged, along with the political leaders of the region, actions such as the launching of the public-private 2030 ICT Alliance for the Americas, the call for larger investments in broad band infrastructure and the campaign for access to broad band aimed at improving social inclusion, as well as Alliance of Rural Women – Empowering rural women through ICT;

That, reflecting the unique membership based role and ability to bridge academia, private sector, technical community and government, CITELE advanced whole of hemisphere interests at the 2018 International Telecommunications Union (ITU) Plenipotentiary Conference through the incorporation of the 87% of its Inter-american proposals in the resolutions adopted as well as in the elections obtaining the Radiocommunications and Development of Telecommunications Bureaux for the region;

That according to ITU to date, one third of people in the region have no access to broadband connectivity, it is important to continue strengthening CITELE as the essential setting for cooperation in the field of communications and ICTs in the Americas, and in particular as a place to discuss and reach agreements on digital inclusion, development of telecommunication infrastructure, use of the radio-electric spectrum and creation of a setting to facilitate investment in ICTs;

That efforts made to facilitate the process of transition from analog to digital television (DTT) and the allocation of the digital dividend taking into account mutual compatibility among broadcasting and mobile stations in the VHF and UHF bands within Central America and the Caribbean laid the groundwork for spectrum coordination and future collaboration;

That actions were undertaken by CITELE in coordination with ITU, CTU, and COMTELCA to improve communications and response capabilities to build resilience to disasters and emergency situations in the region, and

That having assessed the positive results of the work that has been done, it has become necessary to ensure CITELE's financial sustainability to guarantee that it will count with the tools required to continue with its tasks and to manage to implement its 2018-2022 Strategic Plan in line with the organization's Integral Strategic Plan,
