CONSIDERING:

That telecommunications and information and communication technologies (ICTs) are key enabling tools for social, economic, cultural, and environmental development and, therefore, for the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development;

That CITELE is the specialized agency of the OAS for telecommunications and ICTs and, as such, effectively contributes to the implementation of the four OAS pillars and the mandates and initiatives of the Summits of the Americas, to which end it has encouraged, along with the region's political leaders, actions such as the launch of the public-private initiative 2030 ICT Alliance for the Americas, calls for greater investment in broadband infrastructure, the promotion of broadband access in the interest of social inclusion, and the Rural Women's Alliance – Empowering Rural Women Through ICTs;

That, reflecting its unique membership-based role and its ability to bring together academia, the private sector, the technical community, and government, CITELE promotes the interests of the entire Hemisphere at the World Telecommunication and Radiocommunication Assemblies and Conferences of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) through the adoption of Inter-American proposals;

That, according to the ITU, to date one-third of the region's population does not have access to broadband connectivity, and that it is important to continue strengthening CITELE as the crucial arena for cooperation in communications and ICTs in the Americas, most particularly in its role in the debate of and reaching agreement on digital inclusion, the development of telecommunication infrastructure, radio spectrum use, and the creation of an enabling environment for investment in ICTs;

That Resolution AG/RES. 2966 (LI-O/21) "Initiatives for the expansion of telecommunications/information and communication technologies in rural, unserved and underserved areas" proposed by CITELE, has generated great interest in the Member States of the OAS and, the Secretariat of CITELE are carrying out technical support for its implementation in Ecuador and the Dominican Republic. Similarly, steps are being taken to implement it in Paraguay and in other States of the Americas;

That it is necessary to improve coverage and identify the development of models to bridge the digital divide, with CITELE making recommendations for the expansion of telecommunications/ICTs in rural areas and in unserved or underserved areas;

That CITELE has undertaken actions in coordination with the ITU, CTU, and COMTELECA to improve communications and response capabilities with a view to building resilience to disasters and emergency situations in the region; and

That, having assessed the positive results of the work it has been doing, it is necessary to guarantee the financial sustainability of CITELE in order to ensure that it is equipped with the tools required to continue with its work and to implement its 2022–2026 Strategic Plan in line with the Organization's Comprehensive Strategic Plan,

RESOLVES:

1. To encourage member states to intensify horizontal cooperation and the exchange of information, experiences, and best practices among them in the area of telecommunications and information
