

Sara Mía Noguera is Chief of the Equity Promotion Section in the Department of Social Inclusion of the Organization of American States (OAS) where she leads the social development portfolio, including the Meeting of Ministers and High Authorities of Social Development, the Inter-American Social Protection Network (IASPN) and the mechanism that monitors countries' progress in guaranteeing the rights contained in the Additional Protocol to the American Convention on Human Rights in the area of Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights, known as the "Protocol of San Salvador." She also coordinates cooperation and technical assistance activities to support the formulation of policies and actions around social development, particularly to combat poverty and discrimination in the hemisphere. She has 15 years of experience working on issues related to strengthening democracy, gender mainstreaming, human rights, and development cooperation. She has coordinated and co-authored several publications including the "Regional Guidelines for the Social Inclusion of Survivors of Trafficking in Persons in the Americas", the "Compendium on Experiences and Lessons Learned in the Measurement of Multidimensional Poverty in the Americas" and the "Manual for Gender Mainstreaming in OAS Electoral Observation Missions. She has also worked at the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, UNHCR. She holds a master's degree in International Law and Human Rights from the United Nations University for Peace, and a bachelor's degree in International Relations from Georgia Southern University.